

Reveg Ready Webinar

Planning and preparing for a successful native revegetation project on your property

This webinar will take you through the steps to get ready for an autumn planting next year, including:

- Assessing your site (soil, vegetation, topography, climate),
- Design options,
- Choosing the right species,
- Ordering seedlings,
- On ground preparation including weed control

The webinar will include presentations by David Carr and Paul Melehan from Stringybark Ecological, videos plus a question and answer session.

David Carr is a botanist and restoration ecologist with over 30 years experience in revegetation, including time as the Technical Manager for Greening Australia. Paul Melehan is based in the Hunter Valley and has extensive experience working on revegetation projects in the area with landholders, Landcare and Local Land Services.

You will also hear from Hunter Local Land Services about their targeted revegetation incentives programs for landholders in priority areas and how to get involved. BirdLife Australia will provide advice on how to maximise the habitat benefit of your revegetation project.
